Drop-off
You, however, responsible for ensuring that urgently make contact with the occupational therapist at your local health center, to arrange the return of electric wheelchair if your need is terminated, changed or if you intend to move from Östergötland.
As ROAD-USER, you are obliged to know the applicable rules of the driving electric wheelchair and obey them. This means that you:

- Should behave so as not to unduly disrupt or impede traffic
- Should obey all traffic directions (road signs, traffic signs, traffic signals)
- Not allowed to drive electric wheelchair if you are under the influence of such alcohol or medicine

Here are the main rules of the road

- If you do not drive faster than normal walking speed (about 4 km/hour) you are considered a pedestrian, which means that you should drive on the roadway as far left as possible. You should be driving on the sidewalk and use the crossing. It is the best and safest way to get around with power wheelchair in traffic.

- If you drive faster than walking speed, follow the same rules as a cyclist. You will use bicycle path, the cycle path is missing, run on the road as far right as possible.

- If there are bike lanes on both sides of the road you drive on the right, in terms of your direction of travel.

- You may not drive on the freeway or expressway.

- You may not run side by side with another wheelchair or bicycle.

The intersections

- When you run the time off, use pedestrian crossings and wait for the green man, just as consistently.

- If you drive faster than walking speed, follow the traffic rules for cyclists. At the right turn, you give evidence in a timely manner and keep as far right as possible. At left, do the "big bend" - run straight through the intersection to the opposite side, then turn left where it is free and you do not impede other road users. Use any sidewalk and pedestrian crossing.

Give characters
When you drive out from the edge, turn or flip, you must provide timely indication of the direction indicator.

Yield
In these situations, you should give way to other road users:
  o When other vehicles coming from the right, "right" rule.
  o When you hit the main road. There are often traffic signs indicating when to give way.
  o When you run out of the parking lot, property and the like.
  o When you come from the bike path on the roadway.
  o Where will emergency vehicles with sirens and turned blue.

Parking
You can unlike other road park electric wheelchair on a sidewalk on the electric wheelchair does not hinder pedestrian or transport to and from properties. But you must not stop or park so that the danger or traffic disrupted or prevented. This means for example that you can not stop at intersections, at pedestrian crossings, hill or on curves. You must not park within the marked area at a bus stop.

Load
Normally, only you and less load (such as grocery prices) run with the electric wheelchair, see instructions. If you're not sure about traffic rules, or find it unpleasant to drive in traffic, driving rather slowly (up to 4 km per hour) on the sidewalk as pedestrians. It's safer that way.
